

REITs are the Mutual Funds to be Investing in Today, according to Earl E. Bird, III

REITs are a secure investment with consistent returns; a great way to diversify your stock portfolio

Detroit, MI – You never know what the stock market will do. In the past few decades, we have seen a number of sweeping changes in the market that have left some investors completely broke! Earl E. Bird, III, real estate investor in the REITs market said, “This is where REITs come in. Adding a REIT or two to your portfolio will offer you more diversity and stability.”

Earl E. Bird, III recently spoke at a real estate investors’ group meeting where he talked about REITs. “REITs are an alternative way of investing in real estate,” said Earl. “You do not have to invest thousands of dollars into purchasing, fixing and managing a property yourself. You simply purchase real estate mutual funds, where you are funding a real estate management company who does all the work. You reap the benefits of being paid dividends based on the profits of the REIT.”

Earl went on to say, “There is nothing wrong with investing in other stocks, but some people focus too much on the “flavor of the month,” putting everything they have into one single stock, hoping to see great profits. This can be a big mistake. If the company should go under, you lose everything. REITs offer a very consistent return; you will not become a multi-millionaire overnight, but if you stay in it for the long-term, you will see a nice growth in your investment.”

Real estate investors can learn about REITs at the REITBuyer.com.
