

Online Stock Traders Invest in Real Estate Stock and Own a Piece of America

Real Estate Investors can enjoy profits derived from residential real estate and commercial real estate without the risk faced typical real estate developers

Detroit, MI -- If you have been watching all the shifts in the investing markets, you may be a little worried about putting your money into any of them right now. Things have been falling and falling, how do you know where it will be safe to put your cash?

Earl E. Bird, III, spokes person for the ReitBuyer.com said "Perhaps it's time to look at some of the other investing options out there like real estate. I am not talking about running around and buying up any extra lots of property you happen to see around you. Instead, you may want to look into another type of real estate investing; Real estate investment trusts or REITs are funds where you purchase shares of the investment and a real estate management group of real estate development group uses that money to purchase, build or maintain property ventures."

Earl explained that Real estate investment trusts or REITs are funds where you purchase shares of the investment and a real estate management group of real estate development group uses that money to purchase, build or maintain property ventures. In return for the investment, one is paid a portion of any profit that the company makes, much like a stock dividend.

While some investors think it is unwise to consider investing in real estate in today's market, Earl believes that this is the best time to invest. Earl said, "Look at the positive side; the price is low today; 'buy low, sell high' is the rule to profitable stock trading. Most experts feel the downside of real estate values has slowed and will eventually be on the upturn again."

Real estate investors can learn about REITs at the REITBuyer.com. REITbuyer.com is an online brokerage information site specializing In REITs and Real Estate Mutual Funds – The World's first and only site dedicated to REITs Real Estate Mutual Funds. This is a place for the small investor to own a piece of world class real estate.
