

Investors Compare REITs and Learn Some REIT Markets are Stronger than Others

If you are worried about the state of the economy and what you should do with your investing dollars, you can be assured that things are not always as bad as they seem

Detroit, MI – People who invest in the stock market and mutual funds like what they see in REITs or real estate mutual funds because they know that real estate will always have some value. “Even with the condition of the housing market in the US, REITs are still paying a good return,” said Earl Bird, III, real estate investor and spokes person for the REITbuyer.com.

Earl Bird recently had lunch with a group of investors and the conversation quickly turned to real estate investments. Of course, Earl talked about REITs. “The thing to realize is that real estate investments are available all over the world. There are REIT funds that are putting money into real estate in many countries that are developing real estate projects and building a new infrastructure. Getting in on one of these investing options could reap large rewards.”

Since everyone was listening, Earl went on to say, “There are a wide variety of options available in these developing countries including commercial real estate funds and residential real estate programs in the cities. When a country is developing and industrializing, people often move to the city to take part in the growth, which means those residential real estate investments stand to make a great profit.”

One of the investors asked, “But how do you know what markets are about to make that boom? I’m new to investing and have to be focused on my business; I just don’t have the time to do the research.”

Earl said, “A website like the REITbuyer.com is a great place to start. Not only are they real estate brokers that can help you purchase the REIT funds you want, but they are also a great place to get all the information you need to know which REITs are the best to buy. The research has been done for you.”

Real estate investors can learn about REITs at the REITBuyer.com. REITbuyer.com is an online brokerage information site specializing in REITs and Real Estate Mutual Funds – The World’s first and only site dedicated to REITs Real Estate Mutual Funds. This is a place for the small investor to own a piece of world class real estate.
